

Why Buy Cyber Liability Insurance

Your standard restaurant insurance package includes: CGL Policies, Business Operations Policies, Property Policies, workers' comp, etc. Your insurance package will protect your company against loss to tangible property but not loss of data. Claim Examples:

Most restaurant owners collect customer data from credit cards and other forms of personally identifiable information (PII). Business owners also collect employee protected health information. It is not uncommon for a restaurant over several years to accumulate tens of thousands of customer data PII. The consequences of collecting PII can be:

- A disgruntled employee or a hacker stealing your employee's or customer's PII data.
- Perhaps your company outsources or shares space to store your PII data and that information is compromised resulting in a breach (unauthorized disclosure use or access to your data) and identity theft.

As a restaurant owner, if a breach occurred to me these are the potential exposures/costs you would have:

- Legal fees and costs (ex: breach guidance, investigation, notification, e-discovery, litigation prep, contractual review, case defense, etc.) These costs, excluding trial, are estimated at $100K.
- Other costs (ex: notification vendor, call centers, PR vendor, ID theft insurance, credit monitoring, ID restoration, attorney oversight).
- Potential damages (ex: fraud reimbursement monies of customers/employees, credit card replacement, etc.)
